PROFILE

I am a VFX artist with a first class BA(hons) in VFX from The University of Hertfordshire. My principle passions are compositing and matte painting in Nuke although I have a wide range of other skills listed below. I have always been passionate about film and effects since growing up watching Ray Harryhausen's creations striding across the big screen. I left my career in IT to pursue my dream of working in the VFX industry and that previous experience has given me a professional attitude, excellent time management skills and a high level of attention to detail. I also enjoy using my programming skills to improve workflows and streamline processes. I have British and New Zealand citizenship and I am interested in freelance and permanent positions, primarily in London.
